

Advance Insurance Consultants Inc

We Specialized in insuring contractors

Masonry contractors need insurance to protect themselves from financial losses in the event of an accident, lawsuit, or other unforeseen event. Some of the most important types of insurance for masonry contractors include:

- General Liability Insurance
- Commercial Property Insurance
- Workers' Compensation Insurance
- Commercial Auto Insurance
- Professional Liability Insurance
- Umbrella Insurance
- Builders Risk Insurance

What does masonry insurance cover? Masonry insurance typically covers the following types of damage:

- Structural damage: This includes damage to the walls, foundation, and roof of the building.
- Non-structural damage: This includes damage to the interior of the building, such as walls, floors, and ceilings.
- Contents coverage: This covers the cost of replacing personal belongings that are damaged in a covered loss.

How much does masonry insurance cost?

The cost of masonry insurance will vary depending on a number of factors, including the size and value of the building, the location of the building, and the type of coverage that you choose.
